ANNEXURE 20A

Roles and Responsibilities w.r.t E-waste disposal

The roles and responsibilities related to E-waste disposal under the Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) are outlined as follows:

- ❖ Waste Collection and Ensuring Proper E-waste Disposal Methods:
Waste from items that share the same electrical and electronic equipment code will be collected and segregated, ensuring a systematic approach to waste management.
- ❖ Framework Establishment: There will be a framework for the proper channelling of e-waste collected from distributors, authorised service centres, and waste derived from “end-of-life” products. This framework ensures a structured approach to waste handling.
- ❖ Hazardous Material Pre-treatment: Company will safely deliver the e-waste to authorised treatment, storage, and disposal facilities. This step is crucial for environmental protection.
- ❖ E-waste Collection: The Company must actively engage in the collection of E-waste, including electrical and electronic equipment previously introduced to the market.

Recovery and Reuse of E-Waste

In the current scenario, electronic waste recycling has become prevalent across developed countries. Having proper E-waste disposal methods or reusing electronics offers several benefits, including the prevention of health problems, reduction in greenhouse gas emissions, and creating job opportunities. Recycling involves processes like sorting, dismantling, and recovering valuable materials, and it also extends to refurbishing and reusing electronics.

Sustainability and E-waste disposal

Adopting sustainable practices of E-waste disposal methods is crucial for mitigating its environmental and health impacts. Here are some sustainable practices to consider:

- ❖ Support Brands with EPR Policies: Choose to buy electronics from brands that have implemented Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) policies. These brands are committed to taking responsibility for properly disposing and recycling their products.
- ❖ Practice the 3 Rs – Reduce, Reuse, and Recycle:
 - Reduce: Minimise e-waste generation by only purchasing the electronics you genuinely need and by extending the lifespan of your devices through proper maintenance.
 - Reuse: Whenever possible, consider reusing electronic devices or donating them to organisations that can make use of them.
 - Recycle: Ensure to recycle the e-waste properly through authorised channels to recover valuable materials and minimise environmental impact.
- ❖ Seek Authorised Recyclers and Collection Centers: Look for certified e-waste recyclers or official collection centres. These organisations follow environmentally responsible practices in handling and disposing of e-waste.
- ❖ Utilise Producer Responsibility Organizations (PROs): PROs are entities designated to manage and oversee the recycling and disposal of e-waste on behalf of manufacturers. Collaborate with PROs to ensure your e-waste is managed responsibly.
- ❖ Government-Approved Dismantlers: If possible, e-waste will be given to government-approved dismantlers who adhere to regulations and environmentally sound practices.

- ❖ Community-Level Initiatives: Encourage and participate in community-level e-waste collection drives. Organise events or partner with local organisations to raise awareness and promote responsible e-waste disposal within our community.

GREEN HOUSE GAS INVENTORY

MAAN STEEL & POWER LIMITED

1. PREFACE

Steel is critical to the functioning of modern society. It is not only used ubiquitously in buildings, transport, infrastructure, and machinery but is also fundamental to the development of key technologies required by the energy transition, such as wind turbines.

The steel sector is also a major source of greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. i Steel production is directly responsible for ~2.6 gigatons (Gt) of CO₂ emissions in 2020, which is ~7% of global emissions, in addition to ~1.0 Gt CO₂ from the sector's electricity usage.

Current production methods rely on fossil fuel for energy and oxygen removal from iron minerals. As a result, fundamental changes to production methods are required to decarbonize the sector.

2. SIZE OF THE PROJECT

As per obtained EC dated 20.02.2024 (Enhancement of Sponge Iron Production from 117,000 to 177,000 TPA, Billet Production from 192,000 to 318,000 TPA, Power generation from 12 to 27 MW and Installation of 1.2 MTPA Pellet Plant at Jamuria Industrial Estate, Mouza-Ikhra, P.O. Nandi, Dist-Burdwan, West Bengal) the overall capacity of the plant is given below:

Sl. No.	Plant	Overall Capacity
1.	Sponge Iron Plant	1,77,000 TPA
2.	Steel Melting Shop	3,18,000 TPA
3.	Rolling Mill	1,80,000 TPA
4.	Pellet Plant	12,00,000 TPA
5.	Captive Power Plant	27 MW

3. CARBON FOOTPRINT

Carbon footprint (CF) is used to measure the impact of human activities on natural ecosystems, the relative size of human consumption on ecosystems, and it emphasizes on the effect of carbon emission of human energy activities on atmospheric environment. Based on different industries, different levels have been formulated and different greenhouse gases have been considered. Six kinds of greenhouse gas emissions such as CO₂, CH₄ and N₂O produced by human activities in the country have been estimated. The carbon footprint is characterized in three levels: the first level comes from the direct carbon emissions of the institution itself; the second level expands the boundary to the direct carbon emissions of the Department that provides the energy sector; the third level includes the direct and indirect carbon emissions of the whole life cycle of the supply chain.

M/s. Maan Steel & Power Ltd. (MSPL) has identified the areas of activities responsible for carbon footprint and at the same time the company has made carbon sequestration plan also alongwith a road map to neutralise the carbon footprint.

CO₂ emission in MSPL can be divided in two way:

1. DIRECT

Scope - 1

Occur from sources that are owned or controlled by the company

2. INDIRECT

Scope - 2

Purchased electricity (burning fossil fuel)

Scope - 3

A consequence of the activities of the company, but occur from sources not owned or controlled by the company.

3.1 DIRECT (SCOPE-1)

Unit	Coal /Dolochar Requirement (TPA)	Emission Factor (ton CO2/Ton of coal burning)	CO ₂ e Emissions after proposed expansion of the plant (TPA)
AFBC Boiler	Coal - 21,500 (*)	2.98	64,070

() - Dolo char will be generated at DRI Plant, CO₂ emission due to coal used in DRI plant is already considered*

3.2 INDIRECT (SCOPE-2)

Total Power requirement - 26 MW

Coal Requirement for 26 MW Power - 2,00,428 TPA

Following table shows the CO₂ emissions for thermal power generation due to burning coal

Unit	Coal Requirement (TPA)	Emission Factor (ton CO2/Ton of coal burning)	CO ₂ e Emissions after proposed expansion of the plant (TPA)

4. CARBON SEQUESTRATION

Carbon sequestration is defined as the removal of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere and storage in a system. Carbon sequestration is gaining its importance in carbon credit and trading. Identification of many CDM (Clean Development Mechanism) projects has offered special flexibility and relevance in the carbon reduction and has helped improve the national economy. These projects have estimated the quantity of carbon in various systems and their dynamics associated with it. With these estimations, several strategies and formulations have evolved quantifying and reducing the carbon foot print.

No doubt carbon sequestration can be achieved through various systems, but trees form to be the largest terrestrial sink of carbon dioxide. Therefore, the plantation is granted as the most efficient and biggest terrestrial carbon sequestration method. Out of the five most important terrestrial carbon sequestration system (above ground biomass, below ground biomass, litter, wood debris, and soil organic carbon), the above and below ground biomass are the top two in the pool. Biomass of trees develops when plants take in carbon dioxide from the atmosphere in the presence of sunlight and convert them into starch in their tissues. Several studies have revealed that the carbon content in these tissues is half their biomass. So, with their growth and development, trees go on sequestering CO₂ from the atmosphere and store in their tissues as carbohydrates. This continues until the death of the tree. The rate of carbon sequestration is however maximum during the early stages of growth in trees when trees try to produce more and more amount of food to grow, meet the energy required by them and to stabilize in their respective environmental conditions.

5. FURTHER MEASURES

With the growing concern over climate change, steel makers are faced with the challenge of finding ways of lowering CO₂ emissions without seriously undermining process efficiency or considerably adding to costs. The iron and steel industry is the largest industrial source of CO₂ emissions due to the energy intensity of steel production, its reliance on carbon-based fuels and reductants.

The technological compendium of industries suggests the need to shift from traditional carbon intensive technologies for iron and steel production to low-carbon environment friendly technologies. Following are the measures which shall be adopted in coming years by the industries to reduce the overall carbon footprints.

- Increased Clean gas utilization
- Minimising energy consumption and improving the energy efficiency of the process
- Changing to a fuel and/or reducing agent with a lower CO₂ emission factor;
- Capturing the CO₂ and storing it underground.
- Installing state of art cleaner technologies
- Afforestation and Plantation
- Availability of supporting infrastructure (Carbon capture and storage (CCS) and Hydrogen networks) needs to be accelerated, especially for industries, to support the transition to low-carbon/carbon neutral technologies
- Supporting the deployment of Digital Product Passports (DPPs) in the downstream products and applications of steel (e.g., in construction and transportation industries) can improve the process of steel recovery and reuse. The design of DPPs usually contains product related information by manufacturers, including instructions on disassembly and dismantling. If followed correctly during the recycling or end-of-life phase of steel products, steel recovery rates can be enhanced.
- The continuation and reinforcement of the promotion of sustainable means of transport for commuters, such as bicycles, public transport and, most of all, car-pooling would contribute to reducing carbon emissions

Conclusion

M/s. Maan Steel & Power Limited is committed for reducing the overall Green House Gases and Ambient pollution levels through its cleaner technologies and Ecological development activities. The company is always serious on reducing the carbon emissions further through carbon storage techniques (as and when available in Indian scenario), usage of renewable energy resources, Use of Natural gases and Electric Vehicles and Development of Greenbelt.

To conclude, no single option can yield the necessary CO₂ emission reductions but a combination of technologies are available that can be retrofitted to achieve significant reductions, which is possible after commercial deployment of the same by the Government of India. If Carbon capture and storage (CCS) plant is implemented then steel plants could become near zero emitters of CO₂. The commercial viability of CCS partly depends on the price of carbon emissions which is set by government policy. More large-scale demonstration projects, such as the Florange project in France could lead to lower costs in the future. If all technical, financial and cost barriers are overcome, then CCS could be more widely deployed in the steel industry. Developing new technologies, such as the HIsarna process, that are designed to generate a nitrogen-free and CO₂ rich offgas which will make CO₂ capture easier and cheaper.
